Where time stands still

by Mistie Shaw

What do apples, Homer Simpson, antique trucks, Elvis and plants have in common? If you've ever been to Jamul, the answer's easy - Simpson's Garden Town Nursery.

Follow Highway 94 southeast from Rancho San Diego. At the top of the hills, a series of Burma Shave Signs entices visitors to enter a garden of yesterday's delights where whimsy and practicality bump heads and leave you in a land that seems stuck in the 1950s.

Sticking with many of the traditions handed down by her grandfather, Hal Simpson, Cathy Smith and her husband, Lee, have kept their 25 acre nursery behind the times on purpose. No telephones, no fax machines, no computers, no salesmen, no advertising - but the business keeps growing.

Some people return because of the immense selection of plants, others because of the good prices or helpful advice. But I go to return to a time when life was simpler, when friendly people did nice things for other people - just because.

Stop by the office first. There, every visitor is offered a crunchy, cold apple to munch as they wander through the fields. Check under the pepper tree for the clearance bargains. Meander through scented flowers. Listen to a late rising rooster and the hum of busy bees. Stop and read the sign on an old cowboy boot with blooms peeking out of the top. "planted and sold by the Jamul Bootanical Society".

Ponder the effort it took to dig a well by hand nearly a century ago so that the mules used to build highway 94 could have water. Today that well is covered by a pretty little windmill. Discover hippopotami, alligators and other lovable statuary carefully placed in surprising places.

Whirling thing-a-ma-jigs dance in the breeze as children check out the 1954 Ford Fire Truck and assorted topiary animals frolic through the area.

Several years ago, a neighborly coyote decided to cruise through the nursery each morning while making his "rounds". Because he was elusive, he acquired the name Elvis. A pot bellied pig, having outgrown his previous home, was adopted. He reigns in a pen near the museum. Employees have discovered that he is a real ladies' man. His name? Homer Simpson, of course.

Although the Smiths do not give tours of the nursery, they have held unusual scavenger hunts for both children and adults. One local teacher draws scenes of the grounds but leaves out key details. Her children scamper around trying to find the right place, see what is missing and then draw it in on their paper.

Lee is especially pleased when children come to him for help with school projects. He takes the time to listen and offers materials and expertise. Last week, when the valley below was sweltering, Lee joked that even though it was 94 degrees, with the wind chill factor it was really only 86.

He has more good news to share. With calculations based on spiders reinforcing their webs, Lee has been known to accurately predict the weather.

Don't wash your car before you go out there. The dirt roads will remind you of the talcum powder soft soil that your toes remember from childhood. That same dirt is the reason that vintage vehicles have replaced the new trucks. For some reason catalytic converters, electronic controls and computer chips didn't respond well to thick layers of dust clinging to their surfaces. But 24 antique cars and trucks (working and registered) don't seem to mind the dirt at all. Two ancient gasoline pumps frame the entrance to the office museum where office equipment amazes youngsters who have never seen a "cordless" typewriter.

Simpson's Garden Town started in 1928 in what would become the Colorado Boulevard of Rose Parade fame in Pasadena. But after 40 years, the city had engulfed the green grounds. When his property was condemned to make way for a freeway, Hal Simpson said, "If we can stay at least ten years behind the times, we're better off."

"You can't measure success by dollars and cents," Lee Smith may not have been the first person to say it, but he certainly believes it and lives it.

Rod & Gun Club to host Hunting and Fishing Day

by Joe Naiman

The Lemon Grove Rod and Gun Club will host National Hunting and Fishing Day at its Alpine range Saturday.

The events, which run from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., are intended to provide a family orientation into outdoor sports.

"We'd really like to have families come out and enjoy the day," said event coordinator Jack Duncan from his Glenview home. "Try their hand at shooting and see if they like it."

Duncan said that although this is the 25th anniversary of National Hunting and Fishing Day, it is the first one ever in California.

"We were shocked when we found that out," he said.

The Lemon Grove Rod and Gun Club had hosted the National Rifle Association Youth Sports Fest the previous two years, but the NRA cut back on expenses and didn't have a Youth Sports Fest this year.

Duncan, who coaches the Serra High School rifle team, receives the National Shooting Sports Federation publication, which mentioned National Hunting and Fishing Day.

"We jumped on it as a community service," he said.

The NRA will be providing a running target machine. Local supporters have provided air rifles, shotguns, rifles, pistols, archery instruments and ammunition. The public may shoot for free, although they have the option of participating in a raffle or buying a barbecued chicken dinner.

The Buffalo Soldiers re-enactment group will perform a demonstration. The group will also cook the barbecued chicken dinner, which will be available for $5.50. Proceeds will go to educational activities of the Buffalo Soldiers group.

The International Practical Shooting Confederation will also provide a demonstration, and a falconry exhibition will also take place. Hunting dogs may also be at the range if schedule conflicts can be worked out.

Fishing activities will not be available.

"We're on top of a ridge, so we can't do anything about fishing," Duncan said.

National Hunting and Fishing Day was mandated by Congress to recognize the financial contributions of sportsmen to conservation. An 11-percent excise tax on firearms and ammunition is dedicated to conservation.

"Three million dollars a day we pay rather than carrying signs and chaining ourselves to trees," said Duncan. "We're actually doing something about conservation."

Duncan said that since Congress authorized the conservation program, sportsmen have contributed $19 billion to the fund.

The Lemon Grove Rod and Gun Club meets at the Lemon Grove VFW hall, but the range is on Sequan Truck Trail, off of Tavern Road in Alpine.

The 225-member group usually closes the range to non-members except for events such as shooting matches and Saturday's festivities.

Although the truck trail is recently graded, the truck trail is 2.3 miles of dirt road to the range. Duncan said at least the road isn't as rough as the dirt road which leads to the South Bay Rod and Gun Club.

"You don't want to bring a Porsche out there," Duncan warned.

B Words

Those 'fossils' are worth their weight in gold

A reference was made, the other night, to the Retired Senior Volunteer Patrol, as the "Fossil Patrol," and it needs a response. It was made during the oral communications portion of the council meeting, by a perennial gadfly in chastising the council members for not accomplishing more things in a varied number of areas of public need. I must take issue with his flippant insult to a group of very dedicated and selfless people who do more for the community in one six hour shift, than all of the gadflies together think they accomplish.

These "fossils" are in the main people who have not only served their community with long careers in the workplace, but have also served their nation with military duty as well. They have had ships shot out from under them, had B-24s and other aircraft go down, or have worn out combat boondockers on foreign soils. Some, even now, work their shifts above and beyond what their health should be stressed to, and just won't quit in giving their all for their fellow man. And, they are having an effect. Crime is down in our town, partly because of them. Our deputies are relieved of many mundane chores and are thus freed up for more important duties. All this costs the community nothing, with out-of-pocket expenses being borne by the volunteers themselves.

Public input is extremely important, and much of the information that emanates from the podium during the oral communication segments of the meetings is important and valuable. What goes on in the neighborhoods can not always be observed by city employees, and they must rely upon input from the public. Action upon things that are presented is handled according to priority, to availability of personnel, to financial feasibility, and even to the possibility of solving the problems.

It is my observation that the council has always been patient and restrained with the public who complain, who question, and who often chastise the city for not doing more, faster, and with less discomfort to the populace. Not having to worry about cost, workloads, or even practicality, is much like being a Monday morning quarterback. Usually an explanation will suffice and eventually the problems will be addressed and often solved.

I am proud of our "Fossil Patrol" and thankful that they are out there. Chuck Rodefer, Bill Trask, Ken Sellers, Al Wake, Bill Goodman, Rene Collette, Raul Garcia, Don Pountney, Bob O'Donnell, Lon Blanchard and Dick Zumwalt are but a few of these old "geezer" that have the stuff to serve. I will take their company any time over the complainers who like to shoot their mouths off with insults and threats. Personal vendettas and worn out admonitions are obviously more self gratifying than useful. That the city "don't care" is a broken record, and the burble of vigilanteism is pitiful.

Give us the presence and the service of those named above and their counterparts, and we will continue to prosper and do well in Lemon Grove. I would never advocate silencing the "foolscap Patrol" and their John Does who get their kicks from spouting insults and invectives from a speck of limelight, but proper perspective is where they belong. One old "fossil" is worth 10 of them, and thank God they are outnumbered by many times 10.

Once again, the city appreciates the public input and constructive criticism is welcomed. To those who might take offense at my B words, I can only say "if the shoe fits, —"

Soroptimists set semi-annual rummage sale

It's time again for what has become a tradition in Lemon Grove. The semi-annual rummage sale, a major fundraiser for Soroptimist International of Lemon Grove, will be held from 8 a.m. - 3 p.m. Oct. 5 at the corner of New Jersey and Pacific in Lemon Grove.

Members of the club are not sure just how many years the sale has been held, but some of the charter members agree that it has been at least 25 years, if not 30. Long enough for customers to know its reputation and be in line well before the sale begins.

The sale is noted for its quantity and quality of items ranging from furniture, appliances, books and clothing to an entire section for arts and crafts.

Proceeds from this sale and the one held in April are used to sponsor several local projects in the community including Mesa Valley Grove Senior Programs, Adopt-A-Child, Horsemanship for the Handicapped and the Food Bank.

If you have items you would like to donate call Mary Shelley at 460-1710 or Nancy McCadam at 668-4575.

Kiwanis selling 'Entertainment Book'

The Kiwanis Club of Lemon Grove is raising funds by selling the Entertainment Book. Each book contains hundreds of "Two for One" discounts for dining, fast food, movies, sports activities, special attractions, travel and hotels. There is 50-percent savings on almost everything. The Entertainment Book is now being sold for $40 and the proceeds from the sale will help fund local youth and community projects. To receive a copy, call Dell Enterprises at 469-2100.

RSVP starts new program

The Retired Senior Volunteer Patrol at the Lemon Grove Sheriff's station is starting a new "You Are Not Alone" (YANA) program. YANA currently involves calling the homebound elderly (YANAs) each day to check on their welfare and visiting at least once a week. The volunteers call nearly 50 people each morning prior to going on patrol.

The new program involves working in pairs 5 - 6 hours one day a week, calling all the YANAs each day, visiting those that did not answer the phone plus visiting approximately 15 other YANAs each day of duty. Uniforms will be furnished and participants will drive a car clearly marked as a "volunteer."

The program is geared toward those unable to join the volunteer patrol due to physical conditions, and for couples who enjoy helping others and who want to do things together.

For further information, call the volunteer office at 441-4325.

Burns to speak on history of local theater

Dr. Robert F. Burns will give a presentation on theater productions of the past in Lemon Grove at the October meeting of the Lemon Grove Historical Society.

1:30 p.m. Oct. 3 at the Lemon Grove Library, 8073 Broadway.

Burns will speak on the Lemon Grove Players, who put on some quality productions in the early 1970s. Spearheaded by Dorthie Du Bois, the group of theater-loving volunteers banded together to form the company. It lasted for seven years, with several productions each year, and achieved considerable acclaim in the local theater scene.

Pictures and memories will be presented, and everyone is welcome to attend.

In other news, the Historical Society is on the verge of having its own home in the Atherton Chapel on Church Street. The city has approved the concept and is in the process of doing the paperwork.

The society is making an appeal for donations of any and all items of historical significance to Lemon Grove. Pictures are especially desired, with designations as to the people and places depicted. At long last there will be a safe place for the exhibition and storage of these valuable artifacts of the city's history.

Library seeks volunteer readers

The Lemon Grove Library invites community volunteers to join their growing corps of "Grandparents and Books" readers.

The intergenerational program brings together adults and children in the library so that both can experience the warm interaction and special pleasure of reading aloud.

A training workshop for new participants will take place from 9 a.m. to noon on Wednesday at the library, 8073 Broadway.

"Grandparents and Books" is a statewide project spearheaded by the California State Library. So far, 24 of the county's 31 branches have established active "Grandparents and Books" programs.

"Many older adults have few opportunities to interact with children, and in many households both parents have full-time jobs," said Ruth Callahan, county coordinator of Children's and Young Adult Services. "Many grandparents live far away from their grandchildren, so this program helps fill a gap in providing a very important family relationship — both for the children and the grandparents."

County Library Director Marilyn Crouch said the program plays an important role in strengthening the community. For more information, call 463-9819.

Commentary

Here come the debates

by Paul Treske

Now that the participants, formats and locations have been determined, and the rejected Ross Perot is threatening lawsuits in all directions, let's look at the history and issues surrounding candidate debates.

Although some high level debating is recorded in the American nineteenth century (Lincoln-Douglas), face-to-face debating between presidential candidates in this century is a new and television-driven phenomenon. It started with Kennedy-Nixon and has continued off and on ever since.

However, those who expect real substance to be the meat of such forensics must have been living in a subterranean lead mine in recent years, for substance or the true issues of the day have little or nothing to do with it. Instead, appearance and presentation, as well as a memorable phrase or two, have generally carried the day.

Looking back to the modern progenitor, Kennedy-Nixon, I imagine that few who saw those debates remember the content. I do, and it was quite trivial. What won for Kennedy was Nixon's appearance in the first debate. Having recently been ill and eschewing makeup, Nixon looked old, weary and unwell, while Kennedy seemed the paragon of youth and healthy vitality. Nixon corrected his problems in subsequent debates, but the damage was done and issues were irrelevant.

Ronald Reagan, in several of his varied debates, made use of the phrase "there you go again," making voters forget what he and his opponents were really talking about.

In the 1992 Clinton-Bush-Perot debates, the candidates made little headway on issues, but Bill Clinton's confident presence and easy delivery, compared to George Bush's unease and painfully fractured syntax, was a clear winner.

Actually it was in a Gore-Perot debate on NAFTA two years ago that circumstance over substance was clearest. Both had rambled on unmemorably on trade issues for some time when the question of lobbying Congress came up. When Perot attacked those who were lobbying on behalf of the free trade act, Gore noted that, over recent years, Perot had been one of the most frequent lobbyists of Congress. Unable to factually refute the statement, Perot could only respond with a childish "you're a liar." Gore only smiled and the debate was over with Perot quickly returning to relative obscurity.

The forthcoming debates will produce their own winning and losing pictures and memorable rejoinders (can we ever forget "you, Mr. Quayle, are no Jack Kennedy?"). But taxes, drugs, Saddam Hussein and even family values will not be the decisive factors. How they look, how they present and even how they smile will have infinitely more to do with who "wins" and who "loses."

Reel Thoughts

'Big Night' serves up savory performances

by Betty Jo Tucker

Tony Shalhoub admits he would like to be more like Primo, the Italian master chef he portrays in the new comedy/drama from Rysher Entertainment, "Big Night."

Although not of Italian descent, Shalhoub is best known as the Italian cab driver in television's popular situation comedy, "Wings."

"I admire Primo's simplicity, his artistry and certainty about his work as well as his inability to compromise his principles," said Shalhoub in a recent interview at Mr. A's Restaurant.

Shalhoub said he didn't want Primo to be just another version of Antonio, so he gave him a different tempo and style. He actually trained with a real chef for several months in preparation for this important role.

Landing the movie role can be traced to Shalhoub's past, when he and Stanley Tucci ("Murder One"), the co-writer and co-director of "Big Night," appeared in a play together.

"I must have done something good in a previous life because after Stanley and his cousin wrote the screenplay, I didn't even have to read for the part," he said.

"Big Night" is a remarkable film about the bond between two brothers who leave Italy to open a restaurant in America.

Shalhoub described it as a "labor of love."

"Stanley was tired of playing Italian Mafia types and wanted to do a movie dispelling this stereotype," he said.

Shalhoub understood and supported Tucci's motivation, having himself been offered many terrorist roles due to his Lebanese ethnic background.

According to Shalhoub, Tucci also hoped to show how important food is in bringing people together, perhaps because of its significance in his own large Italian family.

In "Big Night," chef Primo proclaims, "To eat good food is to be close to God," and "Knowledge of God is the bread of angels." Then, because Tucci encouraged Shalhoub to improvise some of Primo's lines, he adds, "I'm not sure what that means, but I know it's true."

Well, I'm not sure what that means either, but I know that Tony Shalhoub gives one of the best performances of the year in "Big Night." I also know that his many fans (including me) look forward to the eighth season of "Wings" and to his next film project, a romantic comedy (to be directed by Danny Boyle of "Trainspotting" fame), which begins shooting in November.

"Big Night" opens in East County tomorrow. Moviegoers who enjoy films blending laughter, tears and good food should not miss this delectable cinematic feast!

Hillary is so misunderstood

In reference to Paul Treske's commentary entitled "It takes a village" [Sept. 19 issue], my response to him is BRAVO!!!! I cannot believe the number of people who have read so much into what Hillary Clinton was saying. I have had this argument with so many friends, many very conservative, who cannot conceive the concept of what she saying. Just wanted to say BRAVO and suggest you write to the Union-Tribune and share your opinion?

Not buying it, Mr. Baldwin

It would be nice if Steve Baldwin demonstrated his vaunted respect and concern for senior citizens instead of merely professing them.

The La Mesa-El Cajon Chapter of the AARP scheduled a forum for 77th District Assembly candidates at their monthly meeting at Wells Park on Sept. 13, at 10 a.m. This forum had been scheduled well in advance, and all candidates had accepted. The regular meeting had been organized around the forum, and the public invited.

At 8:40 p.m., Sept. 12, the forum's moderator was advised by phone that Mr. Baldwin would not be able to attend due to an emergency hearing in Los Angeles. A representative from his campaign was not offered.

The other two candidates, Janet Gastil, Democrat, and Elizabeth Meyers, libertarian, were asked if they would consider proceeding without him, so that at least their views could be presented. They graciously consented and provided an interesting and stimulating, and most informative forum.

It was later determined by phone calls to appropriate organizations that there were no emergency hearings in Los Angeles regarding the Los Angeles School District held on that date.

And so, Assemblyman Baldwin, didn't you think we older people were worth your time? Or would you have simply found it difficult to defend your record on questions raised by Ms. Gastil and Ms. Meyers?

Conflict of interest

Let me get this straight. A panel of Democrats and Republicans, appointed by Democrats and Republicans, proclaims that only the Democrat and Republican have a "realistic" chance of winning the Presidential election, and therefore only a Democrat and Republican should debate before a TV audience of millions. Since the exposure such an opportunity affords is such a huge advantage, the exclusion of any challengers does indeed guarantee that only a Democrat or Republican will win.

Four years from now, this panel will invoke the vote totals they manipulated this time around as proof that, guess what, the process should once again be reserved exclusively for Democrats and Republicans. After all, it's only realistic.

Is my name Alice? Is this America or have I stepped through the looking glass into Wonderland? Isn't this what we used to call a conflict of interest?

WAYNE VANDELOGT
Lakeside

Why is Dole debating?

Since the official "Demo-publican" debate commission has seen fit to exclude "candidates who have little chance" of winning the United States Presidency, I have the following recommendation that will save all of us dumb voters additional time in making our decision.

Only Bob Dole and Bill Clinton are scheduled to debate. All others are excluded, even candidates such as Harry Browne and Ross Perot who will be on all 50 state ballots. But why stop there? Candidate Dole has no chance of winning the Presidency, he is running as much as 22 percent behind in current polls.

Obviously, if the criteria for inclusion in the debates is whether a candidate has a "realistic chance" of winning, the commission should save us the aggravation of including Dole in the debates. By the Commission's twisted logic, only Bill Clinton should debate Bill Clinton.

Is it only a coincidence that America has the lowest voter turnout of any democracy in the world?

STEVE GREEN
Santee

Non-prophet situation

Paul Kirk, spokesman for the Presidential Debate Commission, has issued his pronouncement. It's unrealistic, says the election co-czar, to think that any third-party candidate could win the election, so they're all scratched from the debates. But what's unrealistic is that any candidate could even compete — realistically — without access to those debates. The Commission's decision, then, is not the acknowledgment of a fact; it is the imposition of one. By imposing their own self-fulfilling prediction onto the American electorate, they make it come true.

If a third-party candidate could employ this corrupt form of prognostication at the race track, he could win enough money simply to buy an election. And with high-powered lobbyists like Paul Kirk absurdly holding positions of such enormous influence, I'm sure he could find one for sale.

Great Day, Four Tops among concerts

The Great Day will perform contemporary Christian music at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Lemon Grove United Methodist Church, 3205 Washington St. in Lemon Grove.

The group, comprising young adults from many denominations, has been performing worldwide for more than 20 years.

The entire family is invited to attend this event. Suggested donations for tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Family packs of tickets for up to 6 members are being offered for $10. A limited number of family packs have been donated for those families with limited funds. For more information, call 466-3291.

The Four Tops

The Four Tops will bring their Motown sound to East County, 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, at Sycuan's Outdoor Theatre, 5469 Dehesa Rd. in El Cajon.

The Four Tops brought soulful rhythms and honey-smooth harmonies to such hits as "Baby I Need Your Loving," "Sugar Pie, Honey Bunch" and "Ain't No Woman Like the One I've Got."

They have been international favorites of music lovers and hopeless romantics since 1964.

The Four Tops concert will include special guest Freda Payne, noted jazz balladeer and Broadway star who shot to stardom with her chart-topper "Band of Gold."

Sycuan's Outdoor Theatre is located three miles east of the Singing Hills Country Club. Tickets are available at Sycuan's Gift Shop and at TicketMaster outlets or by phone, 220-TIXS.

Grossmont Symphony

Eric Chan, the winner of the 1996 Grossmont Community Concert Association Audition, will perform in concert with the Grossmont Symphony Orchestra at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 4 at El Cajon's own professional concert hall, Theatre East.

Chan will perform Felix Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 in G minor for Piano and Orchestra. The orchestra, directed by Randall Tweed, will also perform Georges Bizet's Symphony in C Major.

The concert is being sponsored by the Grossmont College Music Department in cooperation with the Women's Auxiliary of the Grossmont Community Concert Association.

Tickets are available at the Theatre East box office for the general admission price of $5 and $3 for students. A reception for Mr. Chan will follow the evening's performance.

Fall college enrollment figures up over last year

by Mark
Morgan-Hallburn

College is back in session in East County and most of the local campuses are showing an increase in student enrollment for the fall of 1996.

Only law school enrollment is on the decline.

Grossmont Community College reports an increase of more than 200 students, for a total of 14,949 students, according to Laith Shammass, Admissions and Records Department systems specialist.

President Richard Sanchez said the increase is within his goals of a slow-growth and retention plan for students.

"People seem to be making education a higher priority these days," he said. "They are recognizing that additional education can be a real boost. When they do, they find that Grossmont College is here to help with some outstanding programs and classes."

At Cuyamaca College, President Sherrill Amador has watched her small school grow to 5,569 students from last fall's figures of 4,458. Associate Dean of Admissions and Records Jeanne Hyde said Cuyamaca has been doing a lot of outreach, letting the community know that they're here.

"We mailed out class schedules for the first time," she said. "We're also implementing some new strategies to help students successfully continue in their classes."

Christian Heritage College in El Cajon reports 570 student souls on campus this fall, including 195 in the degree completion program.

Across the street at Linda Vista Bible College and Seminary, a new Marriage, Family Counseling section has helped increase the student body population to 115 students from the 80 enrolled in the fall of 1995.

The increase brings some positive news to the campus that lost its president, Otto Reece, who passed away in February after 50 years at the helm of the school. Along with more students, Linda Vista has a new president, Gary F. Coombs, who hopes to take the small school into the 21st Century.

At Western Sierra Law School in La Mesa, enrollment is down to 45 from 60 last fall and winter.

"I think they are traditionally down at most law schools — about 17 percent," Fred Eason, dean of the school, reports. "I think the reason is supply and demand. There's a large pool of lawyers now. The interest is dwindling from law."

Letters to the Editor

Johnson at your service Part III

"M is for Mayor" ["Dancing for the streets," Sept. 19 issue] invites us to the celebration of the completion of the sidewalks on San Miguel and Mt. Vernon. Your sidewalk superintendent can not wait to be there.

That the ribbon-cutting ceremony is being held on San Miguel Avenue between Massachusetts and Drew is of significant importance. The residents in that area may have had reason to be patient with the construction. There were practically no private residences effected.

If the ceremony was held on San Miguel between Massachusetts and Main, it is doubtful that anyone would attend. Residents of that area don't have much reason to have been patient with the construction. Yet, being good homeowners, they will be patient with city hall and not come out to throw rocks.

While Lemon Grove enjoys its new sidewalks your sidewalk superintendent will prowl the city to find other construction projects to critique. Particularly, city projects.
